
ict@innovation: Call for training institutions for FOSS Business Models

By ago

Published: 4 Nov 2008 - 15:26

ict@innovation is currently gathering a group of African training institutions that are interested in joining in the regional trainings on African Business Models based on Free and Open Source Software (FOSS). The training institutions can be universities, vocational training centers, private training organizations or consultancy businesses in Southern and East Africa in the field of IT and/or business. Participants are expected to integrate a course on FOSS business models in Africa in their training portfolio.

The trainings will take place in 2009.

There are two options to express interest:

- 1) Register on this site, and mention that you are interested in becoming a training partner, with some further details, in the registration form. Your account is then automatically added to our database.
- 2) Contact us.